Featured Shake Hands with the Devil

Neighbours members enjoyed this touching story about one man being tasked by the United Nations with ensuring that peace was maintained in Rwanda – Canadian Lieutenant General Roméo Dallaire.

But unsupported by U.N. headquarters and its Security Council far away in New York, Dallaire and his handful of soldiers were incapable of stopping the genocide.

After ten years of mental torture, reliving the horrors daily and more than once attempting suicide, Roméo Dallaire has poured out his soul in this extraordinary book and now a movie. Shake Hands With The Devil is a “Cri de Coeur”. The General pulls no punches in his condemnation of top UN officials, expedient Belgian policy makers and senior members of the Clinton administration who chose to do nothing as Dallaire pleaded for reinforcements and revised rules of engagement.

Shake Hands With The Devil is the most powerful documentary produced about the Rwandan genocide. Unflinching. Gut-wrenching. Challenging. Hard-hitting. This is appointment television for viewers throughout the world who care about human rights and international justice.
